STUTTGART MUSEUM OF ART (KUNSTMUSEUM STUTTGART)

The large glass cube in the heart of Stuttgart provides a delightful contrast to the architecture of the Palace Square (Schlossplatz) that surrounds it. Day or night, the museum catches everybody's eye. Art and works of classical modernism are exhibited on 5,000 sqm of space within the building and in two former tunnel passages.

MUSEUM RITTER IN WALDENBUCH

The equilateral quadrilateral, so characteristic of the chocolate maker, can be found again and again in Marli Hoppe-Ritter's collection. The exhibition looks at the square in 20th and 21st century art. A visit to the adjacent chocolate exhibition (SchokoAusstellung) and the chocolate shop (SchokoShop) is another highlight in Waldenbuch.

STIHL GALLERY IN WAILBLINGEN (GALERIE STIHL WAILBLINGEN)

Between the historic town walls and the bank of the Rems river, the award-winning architecture of the Stihl Gallery (Galerie Stihl) in Waiblingen draws one's attention. Whether it be landscape drawings, graphic reproductions from Dürer to Picasso, photographs, comics, even cardboard furniture and paper clothes – the diversity of paper as a material never ceases to amaze.

PALACE SQUARE (SCHLOSSPLATZ)

In the heart of the city, surrounded by the renaissance style of the Old Castle (Altes Schloss), the baroque New Castle (Neues Schloss) and the modern glass cube of the Museum of Art (Kunstmuseum), the Palace Square (Schlossplatz) with its two fountains is definitely the nicest setting in which to relax. It is a frequent meeting place and for many the most popular square in the centre.

SEPULCHRAL CHAPEL ON WÜRTTEMBERG HILL (GRABKAPELLE AUF DEM WÜRTTEMBERG)

The Sepulchral Chapel (Grabkapelle) – the most romantic place in the state. Within the vineyards, King William I had the mausoleum built for his wife Katharina who died young. The breathtaking architecture and idyllic location with a view over the whole of Stuttgart and the region are a true expression of love.

TELEVISION TOWER STUTTGART (FERNSEHTURM STUTTGART)

The world's first television tower resides in Stuttgart! Since its opening in 1956, it has been considered an aesthetic and architectural masterpiece and, with its timeless design, is unrivalled to this day. Two observation platforms 150 and 153 metres up in the sky offer spectacular views of Stuttgart and the surrounding area. These views are best enjoyed over coffee and cake in the Panorama Café (Panoramacafé).

SOLITUDE PALACE STUTTGART (SCHLOSS SOLITUDE STUTTGART)

A magnificent chestnut avenue leads to the delightful little palace in rococo style, which Charles Eugene, Duke of Württemberg, (Carl Eugen, Herzog von Württemberg) had built between 1763 and 1769 "away from the commotion and disappointments of the world". From this palace, built for hunting and receptions, one can enjoy a splendid view of its residential city of Ludwigsburg.

ESSLINGEN CASTLE (BURG ESSLINGEN)

The medieval castle rises above the old town, guaranteeing fabulous views. At no time was this castle a residence for nobility. Instead it was used solely for protection against invaders. Today an idyllic park can be found here with a historical ambience which is used as a picturesque backdrop for open-air events in the summer time.

STUTTGART COLLEGiate CHURCH (STIFTSKIRCHE STUTTGART)

The history of the Collegiate Church (Stiftskirche) goes back to the 10th Century, and that of its organs to 1381. The main organ has been extended, destroyed, rebuilt and was finally replaced in 2004. The work has been worth it, though. After all, this 'king of instruments' is referred to as one of the best organs in the world for good reason.
